Instructions: Print out the Spinner Wheel and instructions how to assemble it. Print out and cut up the Situations so that there is one for each boy on your team.

Spinner Assembly instructions

- (1) PRINT OUT THE NEXT SLIDE OR DRAW SOMETHING SIMILAR.
- (2) Cut a 6-by-6 inch square of lightweight cardboard or card stock paper. At least one side of this square must be blank in order to create a spinner.
- (3) Locate the center of the circle and draw a heavy black dot in the center.
- (4) Cut the arrow from card stock that is slightly shorter than the circumference of the circle. Be sure you have chosen a color that will be visible against any section of the spinner. Shape one end into a point. Cover the spinner and the arrow with clear contact paper or laminate to increase durability and prevent damage from routine game play.
- (5) Punch a hole through the center of the spinner with a paper punch. Locate the center of the arrow, and punch the hole. Insert a paper fastener through the hole of the arrow, and thread through the hole in the spinner. Turn the spinner over and tighten the clasp. Check to make sure the arrow spins freely.

TIP: (you can also use a dice if you cannot make a spinner)

SKITS

1-You make a quick stop by the grocery store with your dad, since your mom needs a few things. He has a list of a few things and asks you to go get 2 huge packages of toilet paper about 5 aisle away and you notice that some kids from school are in the store and you would need to walk by them. The store is packed.

2-You are at school in the cafeteria and you notice that a boy who no one really talks to has sat on some food and he has stuff all over the back of his pants. he does not know and everyone is making fun of him as he walks by.

3-Your youth minister has come to school and is giving a talk to your class about service projects. None of your friends know you are in youth group and the youth minister keeps calling on you and referring to you as part of the group. Everyone starts looking at you and waiting for you to respond.

4-You are in church with your family and you used to be an altar server before you "grew out of it". You notice that mass is starting kind of late and the parish priest makes an announcement that the 2 altar servers scheduled are sick. He asks for volunteers to come forward and help. A lot of people from your school are there and the church is packed, and only a 4th grader stands up. Your parents look at you and smile.

5-Your little brother who is 6 years old comes running up to you at recess saying that he is homesick for mom and wants you to come to the school library to read him a story.

6-You are in your religion class and you notice that your teacher has made a mistake about one of the ten commandments. Even though you looked at him and shook your head no, he does not agree but he has just taught the whole class the wrong commandment. (the protestant version)

- 7-Your grandmother is visiting and she bought you a shirt to wear to school. It is pretty ugly and worthy of being made fun of. There is a soaring eagle on it. Definitely not a cool thing. She asks you where the shirt is when you are eating breakfast and your mom asks you to go put it on for school today.
- 8- You are with your friends at someone's house and the conversation starts down the path of criticizing a lot of people in your class, making fun of the way people look and talk.
